

BME Graduate Program Guidelines on Time for Review

You must stay in touch with the BME Graduate Program Director and Program Administrator to request and receive the proper forms and documentations required by the program and graduate school, to keep them informed and updated on your progress, and to verify that you are on track by taking the right courses and making progress in your area of research.

It is important that enough time is given to your advisor and/or committee to review your papers, publications, thesis, and other work. Our program has a guideline that students should give 2 weeks' notice to their advisor/committee before any deadline and the program expects the advisor/committee to return your work back to you within 2 weeks, pending any complications.
